

M.J. Flood

author of

WHERE ARE YOU

Finding Myself in My Greatest Loss

Where Are You? Finding Myself in My Greatest Loss is the first published work by M.J. Flood. Recalling the author's experience as the father of a stillborn daughter, this memoir articulates the private heartbreak and depression so frequently associated with disenfranchised griefs like pregnancy loss. But Where Are You? is ultimately a work of hope, as M.J. Flood walks the reader through the chaos of death in search of the peace of healing.

ABOUT the AUTHOR

“Beautifully written, poignant, heartfelt, and ultimately spiritually uplifting...”

Gary Jansen
Station to Station

M.J. Flood is a husband and a father of two little girls and a baby angel. Residing in Long Island, New York, he is a high school literature and writing teacher and the author of Where Are You? Finding Myself in My Greatest Loss, his first published work. Flood is also the writer/director of Too Much Noise - a short film in American Sign Language - which has appeared in several film festivals and won the Best Original Idea award at New York City's 2018 Chain Film Festival.

 ENROUTE
Make the time
enroutebooksandmedia.com